

Childhood Biography – Astrology & Soul Story

Core Identity

Born with the Sun in Sagittarius, the Moon in Libra, and Pisces Rising, your chart tells the story of a seeker with a hollow nervous system – a being wide open to the currents of life. Sagittarius Sun makes you a philosopher, a truth-seeker, a storyteller. Libra Moon makes you a harmonizer, craving balance and beauty in emotional life. Pisces Rising makes you porous, like a hollow reed the winds of the world blow through. You feel everything: moods, silences, and the invisible weight of family history.

Early Childhood

You were born into a family carrying the grief of a stillborn older brother. That absence was a presence in itself – a ghost in the home. Pisces Rising children are natural mirrors, and you absorbed the silences and sadness around you as if they were your own. The Libra Moon within you longed to restore harmony in a house shaped by imbalance. You became the child who smoothed atmospheres, who tried to ease others' pain.

Your father, hollowed by his own grief, pulled away. Because you resemble him, you became a mirror he could not face. To you, his distance felt like rejection. To him, it may have been defense against unbearable loss. As a child, though, you could only interpret it as something wrong in yourself. This is how your hollow nervous system was formed: by absorbing not just words, but the unspoken, the unseen, the absence.

The Hollow Nervous System

You describe yourself as a hollow nervous system, and the chart confirms it. Pisces Rising makes your aura porous, sensitive, and impressionable. Libra Moon takes in discord and tries to transform it into harmony. Sagittarius Sun conjunct Neptune turns every silence and mystery into a quest for meaning. Instead of being shielded, you were designed as a conduit. Energy, moods, and grief move through you. This made childhood overwhelming, but it also sharpened your empathy and your ability to translate pain into wisdom.

The Gift Within the Wound

Though it left scars, this hollow nervous system is also your gift. Where others are opaque, you are transparent. Where others miss subtlety, you sense it instantly. Your life path is about learning when to stay open and when to close, when to let the wind make music through your hollow reed, and when to rest in stillness. You are both the philosopher who seeks truth and the empath who holds what others cannot. The child born after loss, who carries not just their own story, but the silences of the family line.